A MESSAGE FROM OUR SPIRITUAL LEADER

TO BEA SSARY

By Angela Denton

Daylight Savings Time ends on November 5, 2017, at 2:00 AM when we “fall back” by setting our clocks back one hour. Although many enjoy an “extra” hour of sleep this weekend, many feel a bit of melancholy as the sun sets earlier and nightfall appears to shorten our day. During this time of the year, we begin to prepare to bring light into our experience as we enter the seasons of gratitude and advent. During the Thanksgiving holiday, we are invited to practice acts of gratitude as we call forth from within the light of appreciation. In preparation for Christmas, the illuminating awakening of the birth of the Christ within, we are beckoned to animate the lights of faith, peace, love, and joy.

In 1990, President George H.W. Bush approved a joint resolution to designate November to be National Native American Heritage Month. Thanksgiving is a popular and cherished holiday in the United States. However, to Native Americans it is a day of mourning. Thanksgiving is a day when Native Americans hold in hallowed remembrance their ancestors who perished in a genocide and lament over the oppression of native people that began when European settlers colonized North America. During the month of November, many Native Americans vow to leave to posterity their sacred customs and traditions. In the following passage, White Feather, a native American Navajo, shares eloquently what is venerated:

“We believe everything is sacred from the largest mountain to the smallest plant and animal. A lesson can be found in all things and experiences and everything has a purpose. To sum up Native Spirituality; it is about honor, love, and respect. Not only do we love, honor, and respect our Creator and our Mother Earth, but also every living thing. It is about being in touch with ourselves and everything around us. It is about knowing and understanding that we are part of everything, and everything is a part of us. We are all One. We also believe that our Elders hold the answers. Our Elders keep our culture alive. We have much to learn from our Elders, and they deserve and receive our utmost respect.”

We the people of this great land can join our Native American brothers and sisters in holding with devoted reverence the natural world and the sacred worth of all sentient beings. There are many ways you can enshrine the light of appreciation by caring for our planet, embracing diversity in others, and honoring our elders and our ancestors.

Cloaked in the energy of appreciation, may you welcome the month of December and the practice of embodying the lights of advent. Each week of advent is symbolized by a Divine quality. During the first week, boldly examine where you are placing your Faith and set the intention to be led by the voice of Divine Wisdom within. Peace is the luminous focus of the second week. Take time each day to find inner stillness that comes when you release the busyness of the world and rest in the breath of the Divine. In a place of quietude, ask how may I be the living prayer of peace? Entering the third week of advent, you are called to walk in the light of the harmonizing power of love. What may need harmonizing in your life? Dare to listen to your Authentic Self and take the necessary actions that will empower you to be the unifying presence of love. During the last week of advent, may you ignite the candle of joy within your soul. When you remember what you truly are the light of the world, joy will naturally arise as your heart becomes filled with zeal as you spring forth with enthusiasm spreading good cheer and joy.

As we embrace the coming of cold, crisp air, earlier sunsets, and the history of our nation, let us rise as emissaries of light. Let us stand on the shoulders of our Native American ancestors and hold sacred the natural world. May we sanctify all life with reverence, and may we boldly be the light of faith, peace, love, and joy.

Love and light,
Angela Denton MA; P.D. MFT; LUT

ALL THE TREES ARE LOSING THEIR LEAVES AND NOT ONE OF THEM IS WORRIED

By Donald Miller

Summer has come to an end; the heat of the summer months is behind us. We are stepping up to Fall and stepping out with love.

I Fall in love with people's passion, the way their eyes light up when they talk about the seasonal things that they love. The changing colors, the falling leaves.

Ahh November! A time of Thanksgiving. The smell of the food is different. It has an orange smell, a squash smell, or the smell of a fresh pumpkin pie. The cinnamon and spices that fill the air remind us of the happy season that will be.

Look to Psalms of Thanksgiving. “Psalm - 44: 8, 69: 30, 75: 1, 86: 12, 100: 4 and 106: 1”.

When November leaves us and December makes its entrance it brings the lights of a new season and the promise of hope. Winter months are short but our thoughts of this season can be as different as the snowflakes. We are all the same but different, searching for the one thing that surrounds us all and that is LOVE.

With the summer a memory, the Thanksgiving of our lives and the future filled with the promise of Love, may your seasons bring peace, comfort and the knowledge that you are deeply loved.

MAY THEY CONTINUE TO LIVE ON IN OUR HEARTS

ON SUNDAY, DECEMBER 10, 2017,
A DAY OF REMEMBRANCE WILL TAKE PLACE AT OUR 10:30 AM WORSHIP SERVICE.

During the last several years many members of Unity by the Shore made their transition. Additionally, many members and friends have experienced the physical passing of a loved one. As we move into the holiday season, let us come together as a community to celebrate how they have touched our lives, and how we will allow the essence of their being to be actively alive in our community and our personal lives. During the service a tribute will be given to our members who have passed in recent years. Additionally, everyone who attends the service is invited to bring a picture of a loved one who is now living beyond the veil or a small symbol or item that represents their essence to place on an altar. Let us come together to support one another in the experience of the physical loss of our loved ones and celebrate the legacy of life that remains vibrant in our hearts and souls.

OUR CHILDREN'S MINISTRY

By Sally Kurth

With Thanksgiving around the corner, our youth has so much to be thankful for. We all enjoyed our Halloween Spooktacular breakfast fundraiser which raised $395 towards upcoming retreats and rallies. Anani and Trinity attended the fall rally from October 19th-22nd with Dina as chaperon. They shared what a great time they had, and how positive and supportive these rallies are for them. Thank you to everyone who brought in delicious food to share, and thank you Lisa, Orsini, and Dina for helping with all the cooking. We are abundantly blessed!

Jack Ives shared his time and talents doing a beautiful art lesson on the power of Zeal with the children. Great job, thank you, Jack! If you would like to share with our youth something you love like cooking, sewing, carpentry, gardening, etc. please see me.

Our Youth Christmas service will be on December 17th at 10:30. We hope you can join us in celebrating "You Are Christmas". The children will invite you to take each of the people and elements in the birth story and see them as an aspect of yourself. To prepare for our joyous Christmas celebration the children have to come on time every Sunday, and also attend an evening rehearsal. I am putting in some calls to the North Pole to see if Santa can drop in too. ;-)

With much Love and Light, Sally

OUR ENVIRONMENT: HOW DRUGS ARE POLLUTING OUR WATER

by Ingrid Justick

The U.S. Geological Survey found traces of over-the-counter and prescription drugs, including hormones from birth control pills, in lakes, rivers, ground and tap water. Our septic systems and treatment plants are not designed to remove drugs from wastewater. Scientists are trying to determine the effect the exposure to this mixture of drugs has on our environment. Early studies show that even small amounts of pharmaceutical products in our water affect the health of our aquatic life, our health, and all life on earth. Some of these micro-pollutants break down naturally when exposed to sunlight. But most chemicals in drugs degrade very slowly or not at all, and enter our waterways.

Few people think about what happens to medicines after they do their work in the body. Most ingested drugs actually pass out of the body with urine and make their way into our groundwater. You can minimize their polluting effects by selecting remedies and other products with fewer synthetic and toxic ingredients whenever possible. Finish your prescribed medications. Also:

- Dispose of medications safely: Do not pour unused portions down the drain. Instead, return medications to a local pharmacy or hospital that accepts toxic waste.
- Buy nonprescription drugs in small enough quantities so you can use them before the expiration date. If you must toss drugs, leave them in their container and wrap it up tightly in a small plastic bag to minimize that the drug will leech into the groundwater at the garbage disposal center.
- Filter your water. Reverse osmosis systems or granular activated carbon filters work to remove inorganic pollutants.
- Urge legislators to devote resources to developing a nationwide plan for the safe disposal of over-the-counter and prescription medication.
- Support research efforts of the U.S. Geological Survey's Toxic Substance Hydrology Program, which is testing our water for micro-pollutants. Under proposed budget cuts it may lose most of its federal funding.
