Closing Poem: “You Are Christmas” ~Anonymous

You are Christmas, not in the lights
That twinkle bright on winter nights,
Not in the gifts, nor the feast we share,
But in the love that fills the air.

You are Christmas, in the quiet grace,
In every smile, in every embrace.
In kindness given, both small and grand,
In reaching out a helping hand.

You are Christmas, in the joy that grows,
In hearts that soften, in peace that flows.
Not just on the day, but all year through,
In every act, in all you do.

You are Christmas, in the quiet prayer,
In moments when we pause and care.
In the hope that rises, pure and true,
In the faith we share, in me and you.

You are Christmas, and you will find,
That love is endless, pure, and kind.
So when you ask, "What is Christmas, dear?"
Remember, it's the love you bring near.
